[REDACTED] for example, that the EFC Investigation Staff has established a case against Oriental Trading Co. on a shipment of RCA electron microscopes. It is possible, therefore, that Oriental Trading Co. is the Japanese firm discussed above or that it represented the above firm in this transaction.

5. The only firm mentioned in paragraph 3 (c)(7), which produces plastic bearings is Industrial Tectonics, Ann Arbor, Mich. While another firm may actually have been approached, a review of all applications by Industrial Tectonics to export bearings to Japan would appear warranted. The firm Starlite Mfg. Co. is a producer of plastic bearings and therefore, may have been utilized as a source by the Japanese negotiator.

or abroad, which the Soviets believe capable of providing them with the Shermies machine. A check on Shermies exports of centrifuges in the 50,000 RPM category might indicate the Soviet's new intermediary.

7. Examination of the American Cyanamide and Bakelite catalogues mentioned in paragraph 3 (e) may provide a clue as to Soviet interest in commodities manufactured by these firms. It is likely that procurement of these items will also be attempted via the Japanese firm supplying the catalogues.
